

The ACP Board of Directors announces it has entered into a strategic alliance with the International Consortium for Organizational Resilience (ICOR) for education and research opportunities for all ACP Members. The International Consortium for Organizational Resilience (ICOR) has agreed to offer ACP Members a 10% discount on all of their training courses and workshops which span a variety of Business Continuity related industries. This is the same discount ICOR offers to its own members for its already low priced course offerings, if ICOR increases the discount for its members the ACP discount will also increase. In addition, when an ACP Chapter hosts the training event, venue, and refreshments the discount will be increased to 20% per ACP Member. ACP and ICOR will also collaborate on research opportunities through their respective Strategic Advisory Councils.

To assist you in preparing for certification, ICOR also offers a two day DRII Qualifying Exam Review course. ICOR stands behind its quality of education and guarantees that if you take this course you will pass the DRII Qualifying Exam, if not you can retake the course free of charge. This is of significant importance to the over 1,000 ACP Members who currently do not hold a Business Continuity related certification.

This alliance provides significant benefits for ACP Members seeking to obtain certifications, education, and research opportunities. To find out more about the training and research offered by ICOR visit their website at <http://www.theicor.org>
